Grant Writing Seminars

Taking the Mystery out of Grant Writing & WINNING

March 24, 2010

If you want to learn the practical ways to win, and not just write grants for your organization, this seminar is for you! This award-winning presenter has written and assisted in securing hundreds of grants for public, private, non-profit and government organizations over the last 15 years. Actively participate in this hands-on seminar that will teach you the four phases of the grant process using real examples from award winning grants. This workshop will help you understand the broader concept of grants as well as the concrete step-by-step process to construct a high quality grant application.

You Will Learn:

- Effective ways to search for the most appropriate grants for your organization
- To view grants from the perspective of the funders and utilize that knowledge to determine your organization's best opportunities
- To work with stakeholders to properly plan and develop a grant project concept
- How to take the mystery out of grant writing by following straight-forward, step-by-step instructions that have the greatest impact on the grant readers

NEW After The Grant: Evaluation & Reporting

April 8, 2010

This follow up seminar is a continuation of the "Taking The Mystery Out of Grant Writing & WINNING" workshop. This six-hour workshop focuses on the strategies for monitoring your grant submission as well as understanding the next steps once you are awarded the grant. Participants will learn how to create and use evaluation tools for data collection and provide the appropriate government entities, whether local, state, federal or tribal, with valuable and meaningful information.

You Will Learn:

- Terms and definitions used in the grant implementation and reporting process
- How to evaluate and measure the outcomes of the grant appropriately
- Effective tools for data collection
- How to sustain the grant for the future

You are welcome to bring any grant applications along with you. There will be an opportunity to work on your grant and receive technical assistance and feedback from the presenter at the end of each seminar.

Presenter

Nicole R. Bowman-Farrell brings nearly 15 years of experience in the consulting business where she provides business and educational consulting services for the public, private, non-profit and tribal sector.
