2 books: Image-based research (ed. Jon Prosser) and Collier and Collier's Visual Ethnography book.

J Interprof Care. 2004 Nov;18(4):403-15.

Realidad Latina: Latino adolescents, their school, and a university use photovoice to examine and address the influence of immigration.

Streng JM, Rhodes SD, Ayala GX, Eng E, Arceo R, Phipps S.

Check out the NACCHO web site - go to Model Practices - click on Georgia - look at Photovoice 2004 - there is a full description there on the program run by the DeKalb County Board of Health - Also, search for Caroline Wang rather than Photovoice - She has written a couple of articles on the process.

Do you know about the web site www.photovoice.com? Also, if you do a pubmed search, there is one article by Wang and Burris that describes one process in rural China.

Deb Roter at Johns Hopkins School of Public Health is an excellent resource.

The Susan G. Komen Breast Cancer Foundation (Orange County Affiliates) worked with community members using photovoice to determine supports and barriers to breast health in their community. They have won an "Honor Roll" award for their photovoice work through the Komen Foundation. Sandra Rose was the person in-charge of the project. We also worked with a SF Bay area group of lay health workers, promotoras, on HIV/AIDS. Their work, The Fotovoz, La Voz de la Promotora, will be in exhibition at the National Promotoras Institute in New York, with the support of US Mexico Border Health Association from Texas. Dr. Alba Lucia Diaz would be the initial contact person.

Pennie also has other articles that are about photovoice. The above one is one of my favorites b/c it's very concrete and shows clearly what they did and how.

Now I know that a lot of folks like Caroline Wang's work, but if you're working with children, then I prefer Wendy Ewald's work:

<http://globetrotter.berkeley.edu/Ewald/kids&photo.html> - She has a great book called "I wanna take me a picture" (again, for working with children).
